BPR Medical shortlisted as finalist for the HSJ Partnership Awards 2023

BPR Medical is delighted to announce that our work trialling the nitrous oxide conversion unit with Newcastle Hospitals and Medclair has been shortlisted at the HSJ Partnership Awards 2023 in the category of sustainability achievement. This recognises our outstanding dedication to helping the NHS achieve its net zero targets.

Commenting on the shortlisting, Head of Sales and Marketing, Safoura Sardari said:

"Not only is this a huge honour for us, but a chance to celebrate working with the great team at Newcastle Hospitals and our Swedish partners Medclair. Being shortlisted for a HSJ Partnership Award has given our team confidence as we look to scale out our project across the NHS. We also hope this can inspire further collaboration in developing innovative solutions to help the NHS reach its net zero goals."

The HSJ Partnership Awards recognise and honour the most effective partnerships, innovative projects and collaborations in the UK health system. The prestigious award programme, now in its sixth year, is not just a celebration of success stories but also a platform to shape the future of our new integrated health and care system.

The judging panel comprised a diverse range of highly regarded figures across the NHS and wider healthcare sector. To be shortlisted as a finalist for these awards, despite tough competition from a pool of brilliant applications, is a mark of real achievement for BPR Medical and the nitrous oxide conversion unit project at Newcastle Hospitals has been selected based on its diligence, ambition, and the positive impact that the project has had on practitioners, patients and the environment.

HSJ editor Alastair McLellan added, "We would like to congratulate BPR Medical on being nominated in the category of sustainability achievement ahead of HSJ Partnership Awards 2023. We are looking forward to welcoming them to the ceremony in March, to join us in recognising the very best collaborations and innovations in the healthcare sector. This year's finalists are of an outstanding calibre and all of them are exceptionally dedicated to enhancing healthcare across the UK."
